

Population Health Specialist

The Population Health Specialist is responsible for using population health strategies to address the preventive and chronic care needs of the patient population. This work includes analysis of patient health data to identify care gaps, outreach to patients to help them obtain needed services, and collaborating with clinic staff to ensure care coordination to drive change by deploying a variety of engagement efforts throughout the entire process. Central to the management of population health is the collection and analysis of large sets of data to stratify risk and make recommendations based on what the data shows, such as for sub-optimal users of health care.
