Letter From the Executive Director

Five years ago, we were afraid. The 10th anniversary of Hurricane Katrina was just a year away and despite the monumental work done, we still weren't whole. We were worried because so much had been done, it might mean that we would abandon those who hadn’t come home, those communities that were still devastated and the people who were the victims of New Orleans’ success. We were troubled because we were constantly being told by disconnected “experts” that the dramatic increase in housing costs meant that the city was stronger. We knew better—particularly those of us who lived in the 75% of apartments that rented for less than $500 a month. Homeowners who had fought their way back knew that most of their homes were valued at less than $100,000, which not only gave them the chance to buy, but a better than decent chance of passing that home down to their children. All this while the income for the average New Orleanians remained heartbreakingly below the regional average, the same as it was well before Hurricane Katrina. Five years ago, we were fearful because no one wanted to talk out loud about these hard truths.

In the Summer of 2014, the Foundation for Louisiana called the citizen planners and the affordable housing industry together and challenged us to find a path forward. We could no longer simply attempt to address the symptoms—we had to create real sustainable solutions. Thousands of regular everyday citizens committed to work with policy experts, civic leaders, business owners, public officials, lenders and affordable housing developers and advocates to begin a process that would lead to a clear and executable strategy to end the city’s affordability crisis.

Five years ago, HousingNOLA was born. We began a remarkable journey that would lead to the creation of a groundbreaking plan in 2015. Much has changed over the past five years, but too much is the same. One thing that has changed, we are no longer afraid to speak our truths. We are no longer worried about demanding more of our elected officials because we know that, unlike the rest of the country, New Orleans has everything it needs to respond to the affordability crisis and set this city on a decidedly different path. Over the next year, we will continue to push because the only thing we are afraid of is what New Orleans will look like in the next five years if we don’t succeed.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

HousingNOLA is a 10-year partnership between community leaders, and dozens of public, private, and nonprofit organizations working to solve New Orleans’ affordable housing crisis. Our efforts are generously supported by JP Morgan Chase, Ford Foundation, Energy Foundation, Kresge Foundation, Capital One, Greater New Orleans Foundation, Community Change, Power Coalition, Home Bank, Greater New Orleans Funders Network, and the Foundation for Louisiana. Additional resources provided by Action Group Network.

HousingNOLA also partners with the Greater New Orleans Housing Alliance (GNOHA), a collaborative of home builders and community development organizations advocating for the preservation and production of affordable housing. The two organizations work together with HousingNOLA serving as convener and GNOHA advocating together, ensuring that the community-crafted housing plan is put into action by local policymakers. HousingNOLA believes our community can provide high-quality, safe and accessible housing that is affordable to individuals and families of all income levels throughout New Orleans and this would not be possible without the ardent support of the people of New Orleans, who we have pledged to serve.

HousingNOLA’s mission is to provide a road map to maximize the effectiveness of scarce government resources, increasing non-traditional resources, and assisting private sector investors in making strategic choices. HousingNOLA is a 10-year partnership between the community leaders, and dozens of public, private, and nonprofit organizations working to solve New Orleans’ affordable housing crisis.
How Did We Do In 2019?

In order to deal with the biases associated with affordable housing, we have to rely on hard data. Unfortunately, the facts reveal that New Orleans is still struggling to meet the needs of our citizens. We saw a decrease in overall cost burden, but a dramatic increase in the cost burden rate for homeowners, while renters basically remained the same. This combined with the net loss of affordable housing opportunities for the second year in a row means that our collective efforts earn a “D.”

Despite the challenges, HousingNOLA reported several collective highlights in the 2019 Report Card:

- Senator Barrow’s SB 109 was passed, establishing an extended foster care program for children who are at least 18 years old but less than 21 years old.
- JPMorgan Chase committed $1.1 million to HousingNOLA to revitalize targeted neighborhoods in the Claiborne Corridor to create affordable housing opportunities and drive economic opportunity through its PRONeighborhoods program.
- The New Orleans City Council unanimously passed the Smart Housing Mix ordinance, but GNOHA and HousingNOLA are still working with officials to refine the maps for implementation.
- In partnership with NewCorp, LiftFund, Hope Credit Union, CD Capital, Lift Fund and Ujamma Economic Development, GNOHA and HousingNOLA re-launched Own the Crescent, a comprehensive initiative to connect funding for small business and affordable housing developments with funding and capacity building support, as well as connect residents with homeownership opportunities.
- The Mayor’s Office of Community Development allocated $3 million to the Soft Second Mortgage Program for 2019 which created dozens of first-time homeowners.
- HousingNOLA launched a Council District Housing Summit Series to work with each Councilmember to bring the community together to address neighborhood-specific housing issues in their district.
- HousingLOUISIANA hosted its 2019 Housing Listening Tour to gather housing priorities in each of the regions and launched its Semi-Annual planning sessions—meeting twice this year with the nine regional housing alliances across the state to create a title clearing agenda for the 2020 Legislative session.
- GNOHA Shared Solutions Initiative implemented a pilot health insurance program through Blue Cross Blue Shield for the city’s nonprofit housing agencies.
- #PutHousingFirst sent out several calls to action to garner support surrounding the Smart Housing Mix, short-term rental regulations, the Entergy rate case and paid actor scandal, and Cedric Richmond’s reintroduction of the American Housing and Economic Mobility Act.
- We worked with Together New Orleans to address issues around the quadrennial property tax assessment.
- With our support, Senator Troy Carter’s SB 79/80 passed, giving New Orleans the chance to create tax freeze programs for long term homeowners and landlords who agree to rent their units at an affordable price.

For the second year in a row, the city and state agencies that are responsible for creating affordable housing fell short of their production goals and lost overall affordable housing opportunities. Those agencies have maintained the 88,190 opportunities created after Hurricane Katrina and added another 6,000. While this would not have fully addressed the need, it would have made a significant impact on the lives of the households. It would have also added much needed stability to our struggling market. The State of Housing breaks down the highs (adding 1,607 units with public subsidy) and the lows (495 less families receiving assistance from the Section 8 Program). This crisis is now having the feared effect: a loss in population.

The Title Clearing committee is in the process of conducting research on the number of irregularly sized lots in New Orleans that can be used for the production of affordable housing. STUDY AND POLICY REVIEW

The action items under Goal 2 are a key component to ending the affordability crisis and guaranteeing equitable access. In many progressive cities, this concept has evolved into a clear and clarion call, “right to city.” Author David Harvey describes it as, “A right to change ourselves by changing the city. It is, moreover, a common rather than an individual right since this transformation inevitably depends upon the exercise of a collective power to reshape the processes of urbanization. The freedom to make and remake our cities and ourselves is, I want to argue, one of the most precious yet most neglected of our human rights.” This year we have struggled to prevent displacement caused by rising property taxes and deal with short term rentals as a threat and a distraction.

ENFORCE AND PROMOTE FAIR HOUSING POLICIES THROUGHOUT NEW ORLEANS

Only a year ago, we were commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Fair Housing Act and we were hopeful that local policies would be able to buffer New Orleans from the chaos at the federal level. In New Orleans the racial wealth divide is growing—despite an increase in New Orleans’ overall homeownership rate, African Americans are not sharing in the welcomed and needed change. We continue to strive for a city where our communities are better integrated and provide a unified and open housing market. It is the only way we can guarantee that all New Orleanians have access to opportunities that would allow them to thrive.

ENCOURAGE SUSTAINABLE DESIGN AND INFRASTRUCTURE FOR ALL NEW ORLEANIANS

The HousingNOLA 10-Year Strategy and Implementation Plan can only be successful if we make safe, decent affordable housing accessible to all. While Hurricane Katrina is a marker of time here in New Orleans, it was also the beginning of a new era in American disasters. Now hundred-year storms and extreme rain events happen with regularity. Sustainability, green jobs, resiliency, energy efficiency must be more than buzz words—they must become fully realized options available but almost. These recommendations strive to infuse existing housing and equity policies into efforts around that are the logical next step to make sure that housing is not only affordable but also safe.

GOAL #5
INCREASE ACCESSIBILITY FOR ALL WALKS OF LIFE, INCLUDING SPECIAL NEEDS RESIDENTS

We have worked hard to eradicate the stigma around the term “affordable housing,” but affordable housing for all is hollow if we are not explicit and intentional about securing this right for the most vulnerable in our society. Over the past five years, our partners who work with opportunity youth, formerly incarcerated and homeless have all made great strides in making changes in housing policy but there is much more to be done. They represent the most vulnerable members of our community and they are more at risk of not having safe and affordable housing and require additional supportive services.

Looking Forward

Through its efforts, HousingNOLA highlights data that educates residents so they will demand policies that impact renters and homeowners through strategic and equitable investments. The strategy, when executed, results in more housing and improved housing that is affordable for all. Housing insecurity, at its core, leads to lack of opportunity. Launched in 2014, this year marks the fifth anniversary of our historic work and with the current progress, or lack thereof, we remain committed to our work. Over the next few months we will have to split our focus and increase private market investments in affordable housing while demanding more of our city and state housing agencies. The following highlights are some of the HousingNOLA priorities for the next twelve months:

- Ensure that the city and state housing agencies finalize their Cooperative Endeavor Agreement and execute plans to stop the loss of affordable housing opportunities;
- Data Working Group and Community Review Team have launched various research projects to revise our demand model, identify housing opportunities and clarify our definition of housing cost burden;
- Work on federal reform efforts to finally stabilize the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) and protect and strengthen the Community Reinvestment Act (CRA);
- We will also assess our neighborhood data and launch our Golden Pearl Neighborhood Typology—an aspirational assessment that quantifies and measures equity at the neighborhood level;
- The data also reveals that there is a pressing need to increase first time homeownership opportunities for African Americans and HousingNOLA will be making this a signature issue for 2020;
- Focus on property tax assessment reform and work for the full implementation the incentives inside the Smart Housing Mix; and
- Work with national partners to raise the issue of affordable housing during the 2020 elections.
