

Get Ready for Open Enrollment

Now's the time to make sure you have the best health insurance for your unique needs—and take advantage of potential cost savings and additional benefits. To prepare, simply use the checklist below and check off the steps you complete.

- SEPTEMBER Talk to your insurance coordinator about your health insurance benefits. Review Medicare.gov to learn more. Consider discussing your health insurance plan options with an independent licensed insurance agent—like those at SelectQuote.
- OCTOBER Medicare Open Enrollment starts October 15th. Decide which health insurance option is best for you—consider provider networks, benefits, prescription coverage, and out-of-pocket costs. Talk to your insurance coordinator or consider calling an independent licensed insurance agent who can help you compare your options, including coverage and costs. One insurance agency available to support you is SelectQuote.
- NOVEMBER Take action before it's too late. Learn about your health insurance options and explore the option of Medicare Advantage. Make your selection today if you haven't already.
- DECEMBER Last chance! Medicare Open Enrollment ends December 7th. Be sure to learn about Medicare Advantage—now available for people on Medicare who have ESRD. Make sure you have all the education you need to make an informed decision and make your selection before it's too late.
