

Director's Corner

While we may be grasping to the final days of summer, the start of the new school year is here. New faces, new routines, and new rules are what our days are about now. As we reach the end of our first week, you may have noticed some detachment issues from your child. This is all normal, even if they were with us last year. At this age, any break from what they are used to takes time to adjust. And they will. While we have had many tears this week, we have also had many smiles, laughs, and new friendships forming. Keep assuring your child that you love them and school is fun, and we will do the same. Thank you again for entrusting us with your most special gifts. We are blessed!
